Philosophy

Curriculum should reflect the increasing need for general, integrative care of the acutely ill patient in the hospital setting and the chronic patient in the outpatient setting.

Portray the internist as a team player who is coordinating care in close collaboration with other Specialties and primary care physicians.

Incorporate the perspective of the patient reflecting value-based care.

Objectives:

- Define Role and Scope of Internal Medicine in Europe.
- Define Core competencies that all internists have to comply with (national societies may always add to that)
- Define Procedures that all internists should master
- Define Milestones years 1-2 and 5
- Define Assessment during Training
- Define Schedule and minimum Duration of training
- Define Foundation years for Common Trunk for other Specialties
- Define Training requirements for Trainers and Institutions

ETR Review Committee

Sept 25, 2015

"7) Internal Medicine
Very well done document which includes up to date recommendations (i.e., Entrustable professional Activities (EPAs) and inspired from well accepted documents from other countries/organizations. Not always necessary to reinvent the wheel, but usually more effective in strengthening the wheel! »

Brussels, 9th May 2016

It is with great pleasure that the UEMS EEC unanimously endorses the ETR IM and will give positive recommendation to the Council when the ETR will be officially submitted, in October 2016.

The UEMS Executive Committee would like to congratulate the UEMS Section of Internal Medicine as well as all the parties involved in drafting the ETR IM for the outstanding quality of this document that aims to play a major part in raising standards in medical education and training in Europe.
